Question Two: (27 points)

Read the following texts carefully, and then in your ANSWER BOOKLET answer all the questions that follow. Your answers should be based on the text.

A few years ago, as many as 1,000 schools across the USA started making school years longer by adding up to ten extra days to the school year or by making each school day longer by half an hour.

According to a study by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), students in Japan, Indonesia and South Korea spend the most time studying in the world. They want to learn as much as they can to ensure excellent exam grades. They go to school for about nine hours, although this includes optional after-school tuition and activities. They also spend about three hours on homework every day, which is three times as much as many other countries. Their high academic achievements do suggest that the longer you study, the better you do in final exams.

In Finland, however, students are usually given less than half an hour of homework per night, and they attend school for fewer and shorter days than 85% of other developed nations. Despite this, they achieve top marks in subjects like Maths and Science. In addition, most students also speak at least two, and often three, languages fluently.

1. Students in some countries spend the longest time at school. Write down three of the countries. (9 points)
2. There were two strategies to make the school year longer in the USA. Write down these two strategies. (6 points)
3. Find a word that means the same as “teaching, especially in small groups.” (3 points)
4. Quote the sentence that indicates that students' achievement in final exams will be higher if they study more. (3 points)
5. "Reducing the amount of homework students get at the end of each school day has its own positive impacts on their academic achievements". Suggest three positive impacts on student' academic achievements to show how far you agree with the statement. (6 points)

Question Three: (33 points)

A) Read the following texts carefully, and then in your ANSWER BOOKLET answer all the questions that follow. Your answers should be based on the text. (27 points)

In just a few years' time, experts say that billions of machines will be connected to each other and to the Internet. As a consequence, computers will increasingly run our lives for us. For example, your fridge will know when you need more milk and add it to your online shopping list; your windows will close if it is likely to rain; your watch will record your heart rate and email your doctor; and your sofa will tell you when you need to stand up and get some exercise!

Many people are excited about the "Internet of Things". For them, a dream is coming true. They say that our lives will be easier and more comfortable. However, others are not so sure. They want to keep control of their own lives and their own things. In addition, they wonder what would happen if criminals managed to access their passwords and security settings. The dream could easily become a nightmare!

1. The text mentions some examples of how the Internet of Things might run our lives in the near future. Write down three of these examples. (9 points)
2. What does the underlined pronoun 'it' refer to? (3 points)
3. Quote the sentence which means that some people believe that their lives will be less stressful and not complicated. (4 points)
4. According to the text, some people are worried about the future for some reasons. Write down two of these reasons. (5 points)
5. Some people believe that the 'Internet of Things' is exciting. Think of this statement, and in two sentences write you're your point of view. (6 points)

Read the following extract from Around the World in Eighty Days carefully, then answer the question that follows:

'Happily, however, for Mr. Fogg, the animal's instruction in this direction had not gone far, and the elephant still preserved its natural gentleness. Kiouni – this was the name of the elephant – could doubtless travel rapidly for a long time, and, in default of any other means of conveyance, Mr. Fogg resolved to hire him. However, elephants are far from being cheap in India as they are becoming scarce.'

1. Why are elephants expensive in India at that time? (3 points)
2. How do we know that the elephant was not aggressive? (3 point)
